If the answer is “yes,” then APHA has an affordable membership package that you simply can’t pass up.

That’s right — the benefits of APHA membership aren’t just for individuals. They’re for organizations, too. As one of the nation’s premier public health associations, APHA is dedicated to providing its members with the latest in public health science, practice and innovation. We’re also dedicated to strengthening, facilitating and building the kinds of organizational partnerships that leverage our collective capacity toward healthier people, families and communities.

As a nonprofit agency member of APHA, you’ll have full access to our award-winning and peer-reviewed public health publications, easy and affordable access to a large and growing pool of job-seeking professionals, and significant discounts to participate in APHA’s Annual Meeting and Expo, the world’s largest gathering of public health practitioners. Becoming an APHA member also means you join a community of tens of thousands of public health practitioners worldwide — practitioners you’ll be able to easily reach with information on your organization’s events and actions. Plus, by joining APHA, you give your employees an opportunity to become an individual APHA member at the discounted rate of just $70.

If you’re a public health nonprofit, the benefits of APHA membership are clear — we produce resources that are directly relevant to your everyday work and are specifically designed to keep you on the cutting edge of public health practice. But even if your nonprofit isn’t specific to public health, you can still benefit from APHA membership. That’s because public health overlaps with just about every field and sector imaginable.

For example, if you’re a medical nonprofit, our resources offer the latest in evidence-based population health science, while our member networks open the door to local expertise in your community. If you’re an organization focused on environmental issues, APHA membership connects you to the very practitioners who keep our food and water safe and prepare communities for climate change. For nonprofits serving transportation and planning professionals, APHA is leading the movement to design healthier and safer communities through stronger public health-planning partnerships. If your nonprofit represents small businesses and entrepreneurs, we can help you create healthier, more productive workplaces that benefit both employers and employees.

APHA believes everyone has a stake and a role in creating the healthiest nation. We hope you'll join APHA today for a healthier future for all.
